

ART DETECTIVES AT THE NATIONAL GALLERY
with Nirvana Romell, Art Detectives lecturer
10.45 for 11.00, Friday 10 May 2024

Art Detectives teaches viewers how to look at, understand and be 'at home' with any classical painting, even those they don't like. The day after our Art Detectives: How to Look at and Decipher Paintings lecture on Thursday 9 May with Nirvana Romell, put your new-found skills into practice with Nirvana on a visit to the National Gallery. We will look at paintings to recognise, for instance, stylistic and technical differences between periods, regions and artists; Renaissance vs. Baroque, Venice vs. Florence, tempera vs. oil, Northern vs. Italian schools and discover, for example, what Mannerism is!

Put the 'What - Why - How - Where - When - Who' questions from the lecture into practice with real paintings so that you can answer them for yourself. Note, the paintings on the visit will not necessarily be the same as those discussed at the lecture.

Our guided visit with Nirvana costs £16 p.p. and lasts 90 minutes, after which you are free to visit the rest of the National Gallery. Entry tickets are not required for this organised tour, as long as you come in via the Getty entrance, to the right of the main portico entrance. From the Getty there are automatic doors, internal steps and a platform lift take you to Level 0, where you will find the Annenberg Court. Please arrive around 10.45 and wait for Nirvana for a prompt 11.00 start. BOOK SOON: maximum 20 places.
